A Box of Photos Tells No Tales:

A Workshop on Preserving Family History with Peter Savigny of TimeStories

Cos Cob, CT, April 3, 2013—Are your precious family photos socked away in the attic? Do you have miles of 8-millimeter film collecting dust in the back of your closet? Well, it's the stories behind these images that really matter, and there's no time like the present to make certain that your family saga endures. Discover the latest trend in organizing and preserving personal histories with five-time Emmy Award-winner Peter Savigny of TimeStories. Mr. Savigny's program will center on how to preserve family memories through his "Ken Burns"-styled life story films—a fast, easy and rewarding way to chronicle your family history and connect future generations with their past.

Mr. Savigny produced all of the video segments for the Greenwich Historical Society's latest exhibition, From Italy to America, and will share examples of these as well as projects documenting the lives of individual clients. He is a graduate of the School of Visual Arts in New York and has spent over 20 years in design as a creative director with a focus on motion graphics and narrative storytelling. He has worked with an impressive roster of clients including PepsiCo, the NBC Olympics, ABC News, CBS Cable as well as the History, Lifetime, A&E and Discovery channels. His company, TimeStories, also produces corporate heritage documentaries, tribute films and children's "kidography" movies.
